Incidents. Mr. Jennings, a member of the Butler Guards, arrived here yesterday on his way home for a brief visit. Being an eye-witness and an active participator in the battle of Stone Bridge, he relates some interesting incidents, one or two of which we When Kershaw's regiment was advancing on the rerreat of the federals, an officer, mistaking them for a federal regiment in retreat, asked them not very politely what they were retreating for, and told them to go back to their guns. Col. Kershaw, who but was at the head of the column, said : "Who are you, sir?" "I am Surgeon General Wyndham, of the United States army.' "And I, sir, have the honor to be the Colonel of the second Palmetto regiment; Re on of f dismount and deliver up your arms." Not obeying very promptly, Major Artemus D. Goodwyn drew his sword, and ces ordered him to dismount; which he promptly did. posi wel give After surrendering, he asked the Colonel if he would permit him to go on his parole of honor. "Yes," said Col. Kershaw, "to General Beauregard's headquarters;" and he went. "Yes," Col. K. then mounted his horse, which is said to be a magnificent animal. of t Col. Remper, who, with his command, was with the Carolina regiment, was, at one time, surrounded by some dozen of the enemy, who demanded his sword and sur-Fed render. Col. K. said he would deliver his sword to a proper officer. Seeing one of the North Carolina regiments on the left grea ly er rifle he srid to the Lincoln men, yonder is one of your regiments, take me there and I will deliver my sword to the Colonel. They did take him, and found themselves all prisoners.—Southern Guardian.

2nd SC Butler Guards

Clipped By:

hjs21 Wed, Jul 29, 2020

Newspapers™