

pany G, is believed to be still missing.

THE UNITED STATES MARINES.

The marine battalion under the command of Major Reynolds have suffered far less than was first reported. The following is official: Their full strength, including officers and privates, was 353.

Killed.—Lieutenant Hitchcock; Privates Calagg, Harris, Hughes, Lane, Moore, Perkins, Riley, and Ward; Wounded and absent, Corporal Steiner; Privates Stuart, Bowers, Slemmons, and Bradford; Wounded in Hospital, Brevet Major Zeilen, Lieutenant Hale; Privates Dodge, Etchell, Liger, Lang, McKinney, McKann, Wheelan, McGrugan, Howde, Bannoban, Cook, and Potter; Missing, Barrett, Hunt, McChristal, Clark, McCoy, Lewis, Bears, Dempsey, Kresler, Dermont, Otto, Cannon, Stanley, Duncanson, Foley, and Wood.

The first impression was, that this battalion had lost near 150 of their number. The above official report gives 8 killed, 44 missing and sick.

Previous to their leaving, the barracks Major Reynolds, delivered the following short address:

"Fellow Soldiers: Marines, you are called to the field to co-operate with the army. You belong to a corps that has never faltered in its duty. It has ever gained the admiration and applause of its country; and, soldiers, why should we not have it now? You are recruits but partially drilled, but your commanding officer feels assured he will have no cause to complain—on the contrary, have reason to believe, if an opportunity offers, the same renown will be meted to our little band.

"Obedience and strict attention to duty is all that is required to secure success.

"Our commandant is here, with the pride and feelings of a soldier. Let us do honor to our country's cause, and those who have deemed it proper to call for our services."

The whole force of marines in the action numbered about three hundred and sixty men, of whom not more than twenty had been in the service longer than three months. Notwithstanding this fact, however, they behaved on the field like veterans; and, after three several times attempting to support Captain Griffin's battery, they were forced to follow the other panic-stricken troops.

THE NEW YORK FOURTEENTH.

The House, has been At te came to Unioni Federa to get don't l that th on the musket their cl you foc in an asked gone t at the cocked there. a gent who is New rebel road, 1),000 have a of hor at the here i The of the tion. numb withat pired anxio perfor The but ti time, iment Th P. A. M. Bran E; J ker, low,

Marine Casualties

Clipped By:
hjs21
Fri, Dec 31, 2021