

Near Manassas Junction

July 22d 1861

The quiet of our beautiful Sabbath, my precious, darling mother, was utterly destroyed by a tremendous battle yesterday. I find George McGlincey here, & have only time to send you a hasty note to say that I am well, thank God, without a scratch. The engagement became general about 11½ A.M. Tho' an irregular fire had been kept up all morning. From 11½ to 4 the strife? & carnage were fearful. Gen. Jackson had the middle fingers of his left hand broken. Capt. Pendleton (now Col.) had his ear tipped & his thigh hit by a Spent ball. Sandie Pendleton scratched & his horse Shot. Gen J's horse Shot. I met with no accidents. We routed them completely & overwhelmingly. I have no idea of the loss on either side. Theirs doubles ours - They outnumbered us two to one - our officers suffered terribly. Capt. Wm. Nelson hit in the heart - dangerous - but not fatal. Wm. Lee, poor Wm, shot thru the Center of the breast bone - the ball drove in a button & the cloth. but I don't think is in there. I fear it is fatal. I am writing in the room with him, about 4 miles from the Junction & 1 from the battle field. He may get well, but I fear not - His regiment is covered with glory - it took a battery of rifled cannon supposed to be Shermans. Peyton Harrison is Killed, & Holmes & Tucker Conrad fell side by side. I saw their three corpses. Lloyd Powell is Killed.

Thank God for our victory. We drove the enemy entirely off, in ignominious retreat. Captured all their cannon - Some splendid ones - Oh! how horrible is the battle field. they took off most of their dead & wounded, but left a great many. I took a revolver from a prisoner, & got a splendid Army saddle & bridle & saddle cover- I aided a great deal in taking care of our wounded. Helped to bind wounds & saw off legs &c- No time for more - Our Brigade is almost immortalized, but for us the day would have been lost - No body hurt in Butlers Company - Eb. Shaver & Jno. Feaman touched - Capt. B's hat pierced. Wm L. Clark of Winchester - badly wounded.-

Thank our gracious God for all his great mercies.- Darling, darling, Mother, farewell- I saw Bro. Jno. Powell this morning - he is well- Fondest love to Pa, the brs. & sister Ellen.- Write to Sue immediately on getting this - I don't know when I can move Wm. if at all.

God bless you all.

Ever fondly Your Son

EGLee
(Edwin G. Lee)

Lee Edward Jennings II
Shepardstown, WV
Duke
Box 2 - Letters 1857-1864
File letters 1860-1861
33rd Virginia

Near Mansfield Junction
July 22. 1861

The quiet of our beautiful Sabbath, my precious, darling mother, was utterly destroyed by a tremendous battle yesterday. I find Gen. McPherson here, & have only time to send you a hasty note to say that I am well; thank God, without a scratch. The engagement became general about 11½ A.M. Tho' an irregular fire had been kept up all morning. From 11½ to 4 the Strife & Carnage were fearful. Gen. Jackson had the middle finger of his left hand broken. Capt. Pendleton (now Col.) had his ear tipped & his thigh hit by a spent ball. Sandie Pendleton scratched & his horse shot. Gen. G's horse shot. I met with no accident. We routed them completely & overwhelmingly. I have no idea of the loss on either side. Theirs doubles ours - They outnumbered us two to one - Our officers suffered terribly. Capt. Nelson hit in the breast - dangerous, but not fatal. Mrs. Lee, for Mrs., shot thro' the center of the breast bone - the ball drove in a button & the cloth, but I don't think is in there. I fear it is fatal. I am writing in the room with him, about 4 miles from the Junction & 1 from the battle field. He may get well, but I fear not. His regiment is covered with glory - it took a battery of rifled Cannon supposed to be Sherman's. Peyton Harrison is killed, & Holmes & Tucker Courad fell side by side. I saw their three corpses. Lloyd Powell is killed.

entirely off in ignominious retreat. Captured
all their Cannon - Some splendid ones.
Oh! how horrible is the battle field. They took most of their dead & wounded, but left a great many. I took a revolver from a prisoner, & got a splendid Army Saddle & bridle & saddle
bag. I aided a great deal in taking care of our wounded. Helped to bind wounds & saw off legs &c. - No time for more.
Our Brigade is almost immortalized, but for the day would have been lost. No boy left in Butler's Company - Ed. Shaver & Juseman touched. Capt. B's hat pierced.
S. Clark of Winchester badly wounded.

Thank our gracious God for all his great mercies. Darling, darling, mother, farewell.
I am now in Paul this morning - he is well - Fondest love to Pa, the boys, & sister Ellen. Write to Lu immediately on getting this.
Don't know when I can move W<sup>m</sup>. if at all.

God bless you all.

Ever fondly your son

Edwin

[Edwin G. Lee]

Dear Franceses & Mother
July 22. 1861

The quiet of our beautiful Sabbath, my precious, darling mother, was utterly destroyed by a tremendous battle yesterday. I find George McGlinchey here, & have only time to send you a hasty note to say that I am well; thank God, without a scratch.
The engagement became general about 11½
A.M. Tho' an irregular fire had been kept up all morning. From 11½ to 4 the Strife & Carnage were fearful. Gen. Jackson had the middle finger of his left hand broken.
Capt. Pendleton (now Col.) had his ear tipped
& his thigh hit by a spent ball. Sandie Pendleton scratched & his horse shot. Gen. G's horse shot. I met with no accident.
We routed them completely & overwhelmingly.
I have no idea of the loss on either side.
Theirs doubles ours - They outnumbered us two to one - Our officers suffered terribly.
Capt. Nelson hit in the breast - dangerous, but not fatal. Mr. Lee, for Mr. , shot thro' the center of the breast bone - the ball drove in a button & the cloth, but I don't think is in there. I fear it is fatal.
I am writing in the room with him, about 4 miles from the Junction & 1 from the battle field. He may get well, but I fear not. His regiment is covered with glory - it took a battery of rifled cannon supposed to be Sherman's. Peyton Harrison is killed, & Holmes & Tucker covered fell side by side.
I saw their three corpses. Lloyd Powell is killed.

entirely off, in ignominious retreat. Captured
all their Cannon - Some splendid ones - Oh! how horrible is the battle field. they took
most of their dead & wounded, but left a great many. I took a revolver from a prisoner, with a splendid Army Saddle & bridle & saddle over - I aided a great deal in taking care of our wounded. Helped to bind wounds
saw off legs &c - no time for more -
our Brigade is almost immortalized, but for the day would have been lost. No boy left in Butters Company - Eb. Shaver & juseaman touched. Capt. B's hat pierced.
L. Clark of Winchester badly wounded.

Thank our gracious God for all his great
mercies. Darling, darling, mother, farewell - Dear Mrs. Geo. Paul this morning - he is well - Fondest love to Pa, the boys, & sister Ellen - Write to Lu immediately on getting this - don't know when I can move Wm. if at all.

God bless you all.

Ever fondly your son

E. Lee

[Edwin G. Lee]